Wild Bird Feeding

by the experts at

ovember's a month filled with activity. Thanks-giving will be here shortly, and we all know how busy we all know how busy things are going to get. And if you've been involved with the hobby of wild bird feeding, it's very easy to overlook it. Unfortunately, it's also the time when birds need and depend on you for food more than ever.

Birds' natural habits are dwindling every year. It's becoming more and more difficult for them to find food sources. If you've been feeding them all along, it's even more important now to make sure you continue. If you haven't, now's a good with the holidays are coming. the holidays are coming.
It doesn't take much time, and it's not a costly
hobby.

Attracting birds to your yard is both fun and fascinating. It's an excellent way for children to begin understanding nature and its wild creatures. Birds add a new dimension to the home landscape with their colors, songs and activities.

Frank's has several types of feeders, from simple to elaborate and everything in between, so there's something for everyone. And a wide variety of quality, nutritious bird food is available too.

Birds have distinct food Birds have distinct food preferences, so the types you wish to attract will certainly influence your choice of food. If you don't really care which birds come around, you can't go wrong with Frank's Wild Bird Food or Sunflower Seeds, since those foods appeal to nearly every type of bird.

CE · NOTICE · NOTICE · NOTICE · NOTICE

Placement of bird Placement of bird feeders is of utmost importance. Naturally, you'll want them in a spot that offers easy viewing, but location can also affect the number of visitors. Many birds don't like to come to feeders in open areas, so they should be placed near trees and other landscape plants. Not too close to trees, though. Squirrels also like to stop by the feeder for a morsel, and they'll scare the birds away in the process.

Window feeders offer a great close-up view of birds, but you'll have to be a bit more patient. It takes birds a while to the activities inside your home, especially if you have a pet cat, and they may shy away at first. But give 'em time and you'll be rewarded with a fascinating show!

Make sure you keep the feed dry and clean. Feeders should be cleaned regularly and any wet, moldy seed should be thrown out, since it can make birds sick. Bird food should be stored in a leakproof container, outside the home.

Wild bird feeding is sort of a commitment. Once you begin feeding them, you shouldn't abruptly cut their food off. If you do, especially during winter, the birds may not able to find an alternate food source fast enough.

Okay, we all know that an unavoidable situation or two can arise that will make bird feeding difficult or impossible, so it will become necessary to o it as gradually as possible. This will give them a goot fighting chance to find another feeding spot.

Cranberries turn up in hot cereal, warm breads

Cranberries are the berry of the season, but it is not necessary to wait for Thanksgiving to enjoy their flavor. — Gesters of Pillsbury cranberry quick bread mix, Krusteaz fat-free cranberry orange mulfins and Cream of Wheat apple cranberry cranged they didn't wait. The bread and muffins drew the most attention.

Pillsbury

Pillsbury cranberry bread ($2.19 at Dierbergs) was the first one tested. It directs adding 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons oil and 1 egg before baking into a 9-by-5-inch of 8-by-4-inch load of the person who baked it She urged others who try it to follow directions for letting it cool before cutting to keep it from crumbling. Responses were favorable, even from a taster who usually does not like cranberries. She volunteered giving it an "8" on a scale with 10 the highest.

Cranberries in breads and hot cereals make a case for the fruit's versatility

The bread was moist and fluffy. It had a nice flavor and even though I don't like cranberries, I could have eaten another piece. The apples in the bread complimented the cranberries nicely and disguised their tart flavor," she said.

On the other hand, the Krusteaz muffin mix ($2.39' for 12 muffins) delivered more cranberry flavor. "I like the big cranberries and understand they come in a little can in the mix. That's a good idea!" a taster said.

Another liked the recognizable addition of orange peel.

She baked the muffins until the tops showed a hint of the dough turning from pale to a tinge of tan.

Another tester called them "excellent." While she appreciated the moist and pleasant texture of the Pillsbury bread, she would have liked the lawor sweeter. She called the Krusteaz muffins "nicely chewy." Her recommendation in favor of the muffins was echoed.

She noted the "apple" was before the "cranberry" in the name, so apples predominated.
"As you eat it, the cranberries take second billing, but they are evident and add a contrasting tang to the smooth apple flavor and the extra sliced banana I always add to cereal," she said.
She would recommend it, but thought the price would put it on her breakfast menu as a specialty, rather than an everyday offering.

Unfortunately for the non-chalant picker, one's eyes (and apple bags) easily become larger than the imag-imation for serving apples. Their universal appeal pales

Many apple recipes call for peeling. This casts off a majority of the fiber and vitamins that contribute to a heart-healthy diet. Apple Spice Muffins use apples with their peel, preserving the vitamins and fiber that make the apple a better food choice. Try one with a glass of icy cold skim milk for a mid-afternoon snack that boosts energy without adding much fat or many calories. This recipe makes enough for the cook to sample the extra from a "baker's dozen."
